Dr. Harold Olin

While putting my thoughts together for this year's commencement program, numerous things came to mind that I wanted to celebrate from the past year. I won't share the exhaustive list, yet I do think it is important to highlight a handful of items that impacted our students at various places in our school continuum.

Our second and third grade reading scores reached a new pinnacle of proficiency prior to the end of May. Our junior high students continued to earn hundreds of high school credits prior to stepping foot in the high school, thus creating considerable flexibility for their high school scheduling. Greenfield-Central's high school students achieved state championships in marching band (the 3rd time in the last five competitions), VEX Robotics, and bowling. Beyond those accolades, our seniors in men's basketball and football tallied more wins in their four years of high school than any of their predecessors in the last 56 years in our school's history. Our award-winning music and drama programs all had multiple opportunities to showcase their talent in our new performing arts center. In reflection, it is clear to see that our students experienced plenty of success in a variety of settings during the 2024-25 school year.

Of course, we want our students to continue to have great experiences at Greenfield-Central that will prepare them for accolades during their formal years in school and in life beyond the walls of our high-achieving institution. Therefore, we continue to press on toward the goals we have established for the upcoming school year, and we have the commitment of our students, staff, and community to ensure they keep happening.

I am pleased to announce that we have some excit-

Inclement Weather

Several factors are weighed by our weather team prior to making decisions to delay or close school. Student safety is always at the center. We make every effort to make decisions to close or delay school as early as we can, ideally by 6 am.

GCCSC's alert system is utilized to provide school delays or closures updates. Families should ensure their contact information (phone numbers and email addresses) are updated during student registration. If students are dismissed early due to inclement weather, please make sure that your children understand their family's early release plan.

ing things planned for our youngest learners this fall. We are opening our childcare facility for Greenfield-Central staff members, and we anticipate having some open seats available for members of our community. In a similar vein, we are also expanding our preschool program in the fall by opening two more classrooms. This will help us impact the early childhood need that is becoming more and more a reality in our community.

The fall of 2025 will also mean the return of 4th grade students to our elementary school settings. Now that we have a grasp on what our future enrollment will likely resemble, we are eager to restructure our schools in a manner that is more consistent with our peers in the state. This move allows us to keep our younger students in their community school a bit longer.

Specific to our junior high school setting, we will be starting the school year with a new leadership team. After more than 40 years of service in Greenfield-Central, Mr. Jim Bever has committed to retirement in his second attempt. We are grateful for his incredible, positive impact during his tenure with us. As a result of Jim's transition, we have elevated two GC employees (Jeff Cleveland and Meghan Dawson) to embark on new leadership roles. Joining them is tenured assistant principal, Kayla Arguello, who brings a wealth of experience from other school corporations. These moves have created some excitement about the next chapter in the school's history, and we are confident that our junior high students will continue to have a great educational experience in that setting.

Looking at our high school programming, we are excited to begin implementing the new diploma requirements for our freshmen and sophomore students. Specific to the older students in our culminating school, we will continue to offer a large variety of tailored coursework, including dual credit, Advanced Placement, and personalized electives.

This fall, we will have our first set of students participating in the Early Childhood Apprenticeship program that is a partnership with Ball State University. The program prepares students to begin careers in early childhood education. We will also be expanding our career and technical education (CTE) offerings as we prepare to open the new Hancock County Career Center in the fall of 2026. You can already see that facility taking shape on the northwest corner of 200 West and 300 North. I want to thank the county commissioners, county council and redevelopment commission for making this dream a reality. This new setting, known as Amplify Hancock, will provide a unique educational pathway for the students of Greenfield-Central, and many of our students are excited to be the inaugural group of students with this opportunity.
